The Institute for Advanced Study in Mathematics of HIT

The Institute of Advanced Study of Mathematics (IASM) of the Harbin Institute of Technology (HIT) was established in July 2016 and is directly affiliated with the university. IASAM is an academic highland of HIT, enjoying many special policies from the university. IASM is also an inseparable partner of the School of Mathematics.

Over the past six years, IASM has developed rapidly, currently with 22 members, including 8 national high-level talents of various kinds. In addition, IASM has employed 2 international part-time chair professors, one of whom is a Fields medalist. The scientific committee of the Institute, which is responsible for discipline construction, recruitment, and promotion, is composed of world-renowned mathematicians from China and abroad. The operation model of the Institute is the French Mathematical Research Center, and the daily administrative affairs are handled by full-time secretaries, so as to create a free and relaxed atmosphere for researchers.

IASM now has multiple openings at different ranks and is inviting applicants from all disciplines in pure and applied mathematics.
